	8:00 am - 9:00 am	Registration of participants
	9:00 am - 10:00 am	Opening Ceremony
		Keynote Speaker 1 The Role of Universities in Promoting Lifelong Learning Given the increasingly rapid change in our societies, early-life study programmes cannot be expected to provide all the knowledge an individual might need throughout their working and living life. Instead the “what has to be learned” must be continually re-invented and renewed. This session will shed light on strategic efforts such as initiatives into transdisciplinary applied research in the field of Lifelong Learning (hereafter: LLL) to inform teaching and highlight the university’s commitment to knowledge and technology transfer. The session will also highlight on close collaboration with diverse regional, national and international stakeholders, including businesses, which play a vital role in the provision of LLL strategy.
	10:00 am – 10:20 am	Networking Coffee Break
	10:25 am – 11:05 am	Roundtable Discussion 1 The Role of Universities in the Digital Age The Fourth Industrial Revolution urges us to think creatively about the manufacturing process, value chain, distribution and customer service processes. In the meanwhile, the future of education emphasises the immense need to look beyond these areas and strategically utilise the “Internet of Things” to prepare the coming workforce for the challenges ahead. This session will discuss on the role of universities in shaping future technology by being the testbeds for innovation and educating future generations.
	11:05 am – 11:15 am	Question and Answer session
		Keynote Speaker 2 The Role of Universities as Innovation and Enterprise Drivers The role of universities as drivers for innovation and enterprise has increasingly been recognised, with many reports highlighting the role of university-business collaborations in driving local economic development. The university collaboration is valuable for new-to-the-market innovation, particularly to smaller companies. This session will highlight on the key benefits as well as the ‘market failures’ that cannot be ignored: the lack of awareness of the potential benefits from university collaboration, and the lack of knowledge of potential university partners.

2:00 pm – 2:40 pm	Roundtable Discussion 2 The Role of Universities in Quadruple-Helix Collaboration (QHC) The Quadruple-Helix relationship between university, industry, government and community plays an increasingly crucial role in the production, transfer and application of knowledge in the future - how are these collaborations developed and fostered? We believe it is timely to accelerate the initiatives thus far, and move to the next phase not just research but research and development with emphasis on commercial potentials of knowledge generated from the research activities. Hence, this closing panel discussion looks into how QHC can be further fostered through knowledge sharing, expertise clustering, innovation production, and spin-off companies for the country.
